Conflicts of Interest

Board of Directors have an obligation to act in the best interest of the Company. All Directors should endeavour to avoid situations that present a potential or actual conflict between their interest and the interest of the Company.

A "conflict of interest" occurs when a person's private interest interferes in any way, or even appears to interfere, with the interest of the Company, including its subsidiaries and affiliates. A conflict of interest can arise when a Director or his relative takes an action or has an interest that may make it difficult for that Director to perform his or her work objectively and effectively.

Although it would not be possible to describe every situation in which a conflict of interest may arise, the following are examples of situations where the rules are clear. No one, when acting for the Company, including a member of the board, directly or indirectly (such as through a relative):

- a. Accept any benefit, gift or entertainment that would be illegal or result in any violation of law;

- b. Accept any gift of cash or cash equivalent (such as gift certificates, loans, stock, stock options);
- c. Accept or request anything as a “quid pro quo,” or as part of an agreement to do anything in return for the benefit, gift or entertainment;
- d. Participate in any entertainment that is unsavory, or otherwise violates our commitment to mutual respect; or
- e. Participate in any activity that the director know would cause the person giving the benefit, gift or entertainment to violate this Code of Conduct

The following are examples of situations which may constitute a conflict of interest. Situations such as these should be brought to the attention of the Chair of the Nomination & Remuneration Committee or Company Secretary for review and clearance before any action is taken:

- a. Competing with the Company for the purchase or sale of property, services or other interests.
- b. Having an interest in a transaction involving the Company, a customer or supplier (other than as a Director of the Company and not including routine investments in publicly traded companies).
- c. Receiving a loan or guarantee of an obligation as a result of your position as Director of the Company.
- d. Engaging in any conduct or activities that disrupt or impair the Company’s existing or potential commercial relationships.
- e. Accepting compensation, in any form, for services performed for the Company from any source other than the Company.
- f. Either a Director or his relatives receiving benefits, gifts or entertainment from persons or entities who deal with the Company where a benefit, gift or entertainment is intended to influence the Director’s actions as a member of the Board, or where acceptance could create the appearance of a conflict of interest.

Conflicts of interests involving the Directors, or questions concerning potential conflicts, shall be brought to the Chairman of the Audit Committee or Nomination and Remuneration

Committee, who will consult with the Board of Directors or Company Secretary, as appropriate.

Corporate Opportunities

Board of Directors owe a duty to the Company to advance its legitimate interests when the opportunity to do so arises. Competing with the Company may involve engaging in the same line of business as the Company, or any situation where the Director takes away from the Company opportunities for sales or purchases of products, services or interests.
